NAKIBINGE SADAT

Born into a creative family with his mother being a fashion designer, Anwar Sadat is the 4th born in a family of seven- three brothers and four sisters, of whom five siblings are artists and fashion designers.

Anwar Sadat Nakibinge does not know how to not be an artist. As a child growing up in Kampala, Uganda, he put pencil to any surface within reach: writing on walls, drawing on his skin, sketching his own shadow on the ground.

He now is a full time visual artist/fashion/interior and exterior designer and the Director and Curator of Ivuka Arts Uganda, Gecko Art Gallery.

'Art is unquestionably one of the purest and highest elements in human happiness; it trains the mind through the eye, and the eye through the mind. As the sun colours flowers, so does art colour life. Art is a passionate journey that starts at a point not known and to me it is a journey into my soul, a journey that lifts my spirit, a journey full of hope- art is music, music with no voices, drums, guitars, key boards, no conductors.

My subject matter sometimes resolves around women, as they are the natural treasures we should be proud of. Sadly, their rights have been, and still are, disrespected. Other times I tend to paint works addressing key issues in our community and social well-being like environmental change, from integration to disintegration, from discrimination to unification and from destruction to transformation.

I analyze personal feelings and inspirations which come directly from nature and enjoy creative methods of achieving a result-orientated utilization of various materials. I don't like waste. I like to feel the material and texture, to get in discussion with it, to produce sensuality in form and surface and to make the beholder curious about the beyond.
